Rich Historical Heritage

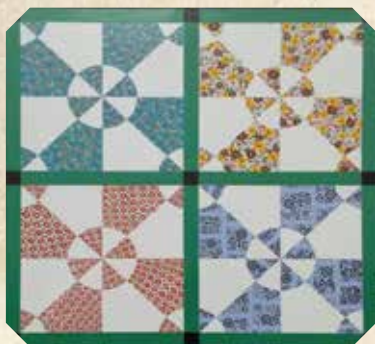

Greene County enjoys a rich, historical heritage. Early settlers followed Indians and animals to the Big Spring - a water source that eventually served the growing town of Greeneville for 150 years.

Founded in 1783, Greeneville and Greene County were named for Revolutionary War hero Nathanael Greene of Rhode Island.

It was to this flourishing community that Andrew Johnson came in 1826 as an illiterate tailor's apprentice. Self-educated, he rose through every political office, from Greeneville alderman to 17th President of the United States. His home, tailor shop and burial place, as well as a visitor center, are open to the public and maintained as a National Historic Site by the U.S. Park Service.

Frontiersman Davy Crockett was born in Greene County, near present-day Limestone, in 1786. He later died in Texas, defending the Alamo during the war for Texas independence from Mexico. During the Civil War, Greeneville changed hands several times. Although the state voted to secede, East Tennessee was an island of unionist sentiment.

Andrew Johnson National Historic Site

121 Monument Ave • (423) 638-3551

Home of the 17th President of the United States. Includes the Visitor Center, Museum, Tailor Shop, two Greeneville residences and National Cemetery, the burial site of President Johnson. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Closed New Year's Day, Christmas Day and Thanksgiving. Admission: free; located in downtown Greeneville.

Bible Covered Bridge

Warrensburg Rd • (423) 798-1766

Built in 1923, the bridge stretches across Little Chuckey Creek at a ford that connects the Bible farm with the Warrensburg Road. In 1948, the bridge was deeded to Greene County and in 1975 became a historical structure. Restoration of the bridge was completed in the fall of 2004.

Cherokee National Forest

4900 Asheville Hwy • (423) 638-4109

If you enjoy the outdoors, the Cherokee National Forest has a lot to offer, including picnicking, hiking, biking, horseback riding, camping, and wildlife viewing.

Davy Crockett Birthplace State Park

1245 Davy Crockett Park Rd • (423) 257-2167

Beautifully landscaped 105-acre park along the Nolichucky River. Museum depicting life of Davy Crockett, replica of Crockett birthplace cabin, camping, swimming pool, picnic areas, fishing, and hiking trails. Visitor Center and museum open 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on weekdays. Campground and park open year-round, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the summer and until 6 p.m. during winter. Handicap accessible. Senior rates for camping. Admission to pool is $3.00. From I-81 traveling north, Exit 23, 28 miles. From I-81 traveling south, Exit 57, 28 miles.

Dickson-Williams Mansion

108 North Irish St • (423) 787-0500

A prime example of Federal architecture, the mansion was built in 1821 by Greeneville's first postmaster, William Dickson. During the Civil War, the mansion served as officers' quarters for both Confederate and Union troops. Daily 90-minute tours. Admission $10.

Doak House Museum

Tusculum College Campus • (423) 636-8554

Home of Samuel Witherspoon Doak, frontier Presbyterian minister and educator who co-founded Tusculum College. Built circa 1830 and listed on the National Register of Historic Places, the Doak House Museum is home to period furnishings, exhibits, a museum shop, and offers educational programs for adults and children, as well as special events throughout the year. Open Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed national and college holidays.

Lost State of Franklin

College St • (423) 639-7105

This building was used from 1785 to 1787 as the Capitol of Franklin. The original building was dismantled and sent to Nashville to be put on exhibition at the Centennial Exposition and the logs were never returned. The restored Capitol of the Lost State of Franklin is one of the most historic buildings in Tennessee and is an authentic reproduction of the original.

Margarette Falls

Margarette Falls Trail • (423) 638-4109

One of the most outstanding waterfalls in the Nolichucky/Unaka Ranger District, the falls is fan-shaped and drops about 50 feet, cascading over stair-step rocks. The trail rises 500 feet through hardwoods and a gorge with sandstone cliffs. It offers a view of Cathedral Rock – an impressive projection from the cliffs.

Greeneville/Greene County History Museum

101 W. McKee St • (423) 636-1558

Take a walk through Greene County's rich history. The galleries house artifacts depicting the lives of Native Americans, pioneer children, early farmers, soldiers, Andrew Johnson, African-Americans, Victorian era families and much more. Located in the Historic District. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Children's programs by appointment.

Old Greene County Gaol (Jail)

E. Depot St • (423) 638-4111

Originally built in 1804-05, the stone jail was in the middle of Depot Street near the Andrew Johnson Tailor Shop. The rear of the jail was nearly touching Richland Creek so the creek water could be channeled to enter and flow through a trough in the stone floor to carry away human waste. In 1838, the jail was moved stone by stone to its present site. Open by appointment only.

President Andrew Johnson Museum & Library at Tusculum College

Tusculum College Campus • (423) 636-7348

The museum is located in Old College built in 1841. It houses the personal library of President Andrew Johnson, along with personal papers and memorabilia of the president and his family. Also includes exhibits on and archives of Tusculum College "oldest college in Tennessee," and museum studies program. Open Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed national and college holidays.

Old Harmony Graveyard

The oldest graveyard in present-day Greeneville, the tombstones date back to the 1790s. Valentine Sevier, who served as Circuit Court Clerk from 1810 until 1854, is buried here, as well as Robert Kerr, first settler of Greeneville, and Mordecai Lincoln, a tanner and Justice of the Peace, who performed Andrew Johnson's wedding and was a cousin of Abraham Lincoln. The upper corner is called the "cholera section" because, in 1873, during an epidemic, trenches were dug and people were buried there when they were dying faster than graves could be dug.

The Greene County Partnership Tourism Department offers two self-guided tours of Greeneville and Greene County. (423) 638-4111

"A Walk with the President" self-guided tour takes you on a walk through the past from the Andrew Johnson Tailor Shop and Museum to historic churches, the Big Spring and the Greeneville/Greene County History Museum.

"Main Street to the Mountains" the Greene County Auto Tours, is a 40-page, spiral-bound, four-color brochure describing area historical sites and attractions, and includes four foldout maps (one page per tour). The tours are entitled "A Track Through Greene County," "Along the Foot of Greystone," "A Journey to Paint Rock" and "Rivers, Roads and Rail Lines." While driving the auto tours, travelers will see many of Greene County's picturesque farmsteads with their clusters of homes, gardens and outbuildings, attesting to Greene County's strong agriculture history. Each tour also offers optional side trips that tourists and locals may take to numerous local historic sites.

USS GREENEVILLE (SSN 772)

USS GREENEVILLE is the 61st Los Angeles Class submarine and the 22nd Improved Los Angeles Class Attack submarine. Construction began on March 1, 1990, and her keel was laid on April 16, 1992, at Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company. The Pre-Commissioning Unit GREENEVILLE (SSN-772) was officially manned on January 19, 1994, and christened on September 17, 1994, by Mrs. Tipper Gore, wife of former Vice President Al Gore.

USS GREENEVILLE was commissioned a U.S. Naval warship at Norfolk Naval Base on February 16, 1996. GREENEVILLE changed homeport to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, in March 1997.

CIVIL WAR TRAILS

BATTLE OF BLUE SPRINGS

This battle, fought on October 10, 1863, documented by both Union and Confederate troops, was a major battle by all accounts. The battle of Blue Springs was the result of a desperate effort of the Rebels to hold upper East Tennessee and the equal determination of the Union forces to drive them from the state entirely.

POTTERTOWN BRIDGE BURNERS

Greene County, believed to be a hotbed of divided loyalties, was home to a community nicknamed "Pottertown." In this community lived Christopher A. Haun, a potter that crafted pottery still highly valued today. Haun conspired with local residents to cripple the rail system by burning railroad bridges.

HANGINGS AT THE DEPOT

On November 9, 1861, after Union sympathizers burned several area railroad bridges, Col. Danville Leadbetter arrived to rebuild the bridges and catch the perpetrators. After being sentenced to death, Henry Fry and Jacob Hinshaw were marched up Depot Street and hanged for their crimes. The third, Hugh Self, was imprisoned because he was only 16.

THE DICKSON-WILLIAMS MANSION

Once known as the Showplace of East Tennessee, and built by Greeneville's first postmaster, the mansion and her owner, Catharine Williams, hosted many U.S. Presidents as well as officers from both the Union and Confederate sides. Confederate cavalry hero Gen. John Hunt Morgan spent the last night of his life in this mansion and was later killed in the home's garden Sept. 4, 1864. Daily tours are given of the mansion.

DEATH OF GEN. JOHN HUNT MORGAN

During an exploration near Greeneville on September 3-4 in 1864, General Morgan (nicknamed the Thunderbolt of the Confederacy) was staying overnight at the Dickson-Williams Mansion and was surprised by the Federal Cavalry. Morgan and his staff officers ran to a nearby church. He was later shot and killed by Union Pvt. Andrew J. Campbell. Morgan's death was a definite blow to the morale of Confederates throughout the South.

TUSCULUM COLLEGE

Located on the campus of the oldest college in Tennessee, the Old College (1841) is the only structure remaining from the earliest days of Tusculum College. Students here burned then-Sen. Andrew Johnson in effigy before classes were finally suspended. The college suffered greatly during the war due to occupation by soldiers of both sides. The building is now the home of the President Andrew Johnson Collection, Tusculum College Archives, and Tusculum Museum Studies Program.

UNIONIST STRONGHOLD

Before the war began, Greene County had a long history of abolitionist settlement. It was not surprising, then, that local residents overwhelmingly supported the Union when Tennessee seceded in 1861. Tennessee denied 30 neighboring counties' request for creating a separate state after meeting in Greeneville.

Greeneville changed hands many times during the war. The Dickson-Williams Mansion served as headquarters for both sides. Greeneville was also home to Andrew Johnson, who moved here from North Carolina in 1826. He assumed presidency after Abraham Lincoln's assassination in 1865. He was very ill-equipped to reconcile a nation torn apart by war.
